Political Outlook in Kentucky.

Washington Correspondence of the Cincinnati Commercial.

A well informed Kentucky Democrat gives the following outlook for the Kentucky delegation in the next congress: In the First District Hon. Oscar Turner, is already out as a candidate, and the zeal with which he has worked for his district and the entire State as well, gives him the field. He never leaves a letter unanswered, a request unconsidered, or an opportunity to hit the Tarriff men a lick, pass, without putting in his word. He will continue to have a front seat. In the Second District Mr. McKenzie will hold an election reception at the polls and will expect to see all his old friends. He will be among them as soon as Congress adjourns, and will begin an active canvass. Mr. McKenzie has a national reputation since his great speech on the tariff, and is held in high esteem here. He dines at the table with David Davis at the National, and together they weigh more than any other two men in Congress, and both are enjoying excellent health. The Second District is in big luck to have so good a man as McKenzie to represent it here in Washington.

Hon. John W. Caldwell is of the opinion that he has had enough of Congress, and prefers to stay at home. Mr. Knott, of the Fourth District, will beg to be excused from coming to Congress again, but will cheerfully consent to stay in Kentucky and run the Governor's office next term. It is thought here that the State will be so glad to have him at Frankfort that the Fourth District can be induced to look up another man for the place filled by Mr. Knott with such credit and distinction for six terms.

Hon. Albert S. Willis has no formal statement to make, though it may be set down among the certainties that he will be a candidate and that he will be heard from as soon as Congress shall adjourn, and he can get time to attend to his own affairs. He is very certain that he will not leave his place until adjournment. He has always been counted with the hard workers here and is just done with some civil-service reform work which will be valuable to his party all through the campaign. He has secured a Custom house for Louisville and will probably continue to represent the District until the work is well begun.

Hon. John G. Carlisle will be a candidate in the sixth district, and will continue to honor his state and his party by standing forth at all times for all that is for the best interests of both.

Hon. J. C. S. Blackburn is a very live candidate in a very lively ante-nomination struggle. The sooner congress adjourns, the sooner Captain Joe will be heard in the blue grass.

Hon. Phil. B. Thompson is already known to be a candidate for re-election in the eighth district, and he apprehends no opposition. Phil. has made a record for himself that will keep him in the first rank. He will be glad to get into the work of rendering an account of his stewardship, but, is like the others, a victim of the last session.

Hon. Elijah Phister stated several weeks ago that he would not be a candidate for re-election, and holds out in this opinion against appeals from home and importunity here to make the race and come back.

Hon. John D. White will be a candidate for re-election.

Moorish Slave Girls.

A correspondent of the London Standard says:

By the Mohammedan law no man is permitted to have more than four wives; but there is no limit but that of the purse to the number of female slaves who may be added to his establishment. The sultan's ladies are numbered by the hundreds, if they do not, indeed, reach the four figures; and in proportion to his position and wealth the well-to-do-Moor in like manner has a large or small harem establishment. The sultan has the privilege of conferring the honor of entering his harem upon whom he will, and any girls in the provinces who are more than ordinarily pretty are sent up to the court for his inspection or sent to him as a complimentary present. Men in high position, as the vizier, are also often presented with the ladies, and, being frequently very wealthy, complete their establishment by private contract, paying perhaps £200 for a girl they may admire.

The ordinarily well-to-do Moor of whom there are a large number of the merchant class, have to content themselves by buying in the open market, and, consequently, the slave market is a highly patronized institution. The court in which this is usually held, on three days in every week opens out of a labyrinth of small, narrow streets, which form the bazaar or general market of the city, a place in which the higher class of Moor would not on other occasions deign to be seen. As the afternoon wears on, however, they may be seen ambling down on their gayly caparisoned mules, with a slave walking behind them, to the entrance of the court, where they dismount and recline in picturesque groups around the inclosure. About the same time arrive twos and threes those who are to be sold, being placed by the salesmen in some small recesses or stalls opening on to the court.

There are about fifty or sixty persons for sale of both sexes and all ages, most of them as black as jet, and from their features evidently natives of the Soudan some of whom were to be sold only in lots, with two or three children. These were the drudges for house and field work, the price of whom is always moderate and strictly commensurate to the amount of work they are likely to be able to perform.

But besides these were two female figures, who evidently excited no small amount of interest in the gray-bearded old Moors, who formed no small proportion of the purchasers. One of them was a closely veiled Moorish girl, whose features were revealed only to inquiring customers, but who from a passing glance did not appear to be remarkable for her beauty. The other was a really pretty girl from the province of Sus, whose rose-colored caftan and green silk head-dress contrasted pleasantly with her olive complexion and long, black lashes. They were all neatly and tidily dressed, bearing no sign of ill-treatment or scant nourishment, and were treated with all consideration, both by salesmen, and purchasers, though the examination made by the latter of the teeth, arms, etc., of those they bid for was very repulsive to those unaccustomed to such sights.

The Bouquet Was Poisoned.

Correspondence Cincinnati Enquirer.

An analysis has been made of the powdered substance in the bouquet of flowers sent by Mrs. Scoville to Guiteau on the night preceding the execution. This bouquet was allowed in Guiteau's cell, where it remained some time, until removed by one of the Deputy Wardens. The analysis was made by one of the attaches of the Army Medical Museum, and it was disclosed that there were plain traces of arsenic in the roses—a sufficient quantity to have killed several men, had they taken it. The results of the experiment will be carefully kept for future reference. During the brief interview at the jail between Mrs. Scoville and Guiteau, a short time after the flowers were sent in, Mrs. Scoville called the prisoner's attention to the beautiful center rose, and it was noticed that Guiteau frequently referred to its beauty. Whether it was understood between them or not is not known. Independent of the poisoned rosebuds, the startling discovery has been made that a piece of vine resembling ivy somewhat was found in the bouquet, and that it is as deadly poisonous as arsenic. To verify this the vine has been sent to a reliable botanist for investigation and report.

The most important feature of the freight handlers' strike on Thursday, was the attempt made by the strikers to induce the Italian laborers to join them.

We are authorized to announce COL. J. SMITH HURT, of Bath County, as a candidate for Congress in the 9th Congressional District at the next November election. Subject to the action of the democratic party.

The flouring mills of East & Lewis, at Lima, burned on Thursday. Loss, $80,000.

"MEDALS of beaten brass" is what Mr. Evarts calls the "306" symbols. The Brooklyn Times says this:

It is a new thing under the sun to find the politicians who lent themselves to that scandalous intrigue, adorning themselves with the insignia of their own disgrace. Judas Iscariot hanged himself, and the Tories, who did their best to aid the British to maintain the authority of King George in the American colonies, tried to obliterate their record as soon as the Revolution became an accomplished fact. They did not order a large installment of medals, and flung the evidence of enmity to free government in the faces of the people. It was left for the obedient vassals of Conkling, Cameron and Logan to brand themselves before the country with this indelible remembrance of their servile fidelity to their bosses, and to stand, by their own act:

Nailed to their self-made gibbet fast,
Self-pilloried to public view,
A mark for every passing blast
Of scorn to whistle through.

But few shells were thrown from the British ships in front of Alexandria, Thursday. The city was already in flames, and with the exception of a body of pillaging Bedouins and a handful of Europeans who had fought hard all night to save themselves from butchery, the city was deserted. No such night was ever passed within the memory of living men, perhaps. Murder in every form was dealt out to the unfortunate Europeans and Christians within the city walls. One hundred persons were massacred at the Ottoman Bank and its adjoining buildings alone. In the meanwhile Arabi Pasha and his forces have intrenched themselves beyond the city. At midnight the fires were raging, uncontrolled. A report is current in Paris that Arabi's plan of action, as developed at Alexandria, was the result of a conference with his officers, determined upon before the arrival of the British. It is said that he expects to join his forces with those of the False Prophet at Cairo.

A FIERY FURNACE.

Alexandria Still Swept by Flames, and Doomed to Destruction—Murdered and Mutilated Christians Found Everywhere—Horrible Atrocities.

ALEXANDRIA, July 14—11 A. M.—The fires in all parts of Alexandria are burning at this hour with increasing fury and spreading rapidly. The city at this hour appears to be beyond all doubt doomed to utter destruction. Nothing can possibly save it. The flames have had their own way now for upwards of seventy hours. The burning city is like a red hot furnace. The third part of the town is burned over almost its entire extent.

11:15 A. M.—A corps of sailors detailed to clear a way through the main streets leading to the principal wharves report the finding of the bodies of Christians and Europeans lying everywhere. Most of them are shockingly mutilated, and nearly all are either charred or scorched. The sailors say the massacre must have been terrible beyond imagination.

A despatch to the News from Alexandria says: The number of persons massacred by the mob is estimated at 2,000.

Admiral Seymour telegraphs: "I have occupied Ras-el-Tin Palace with the Marines and spiked the guns in six batteries opposite. The city is still burning, but I am cleaning the streets. The Khedive is safe in the palace, which is garrisoned by 700 marines."

The most brilliant social event of the season was the finale of the "K. A. B. G." at the residence of Miss Jennie Devore, Georgetown, O. This energetic and self-amusing club has steadily borne up through the many obstacles and trials it encountered on every side—and judging from the smiling countenances and the never ceasing clatter of tongues—it seemed that all pleasure on earth was concentrated in the merry party that assembled at the house of "Our own Jennie," who in her usual bewitching manner, entertained the party in a style that could scarcely be equalled and never surpassed. The sweet strains of music discoursed by Miss Sallie, was wafted to the hearts of all, where it will secure an everlasting remembrance. The repast must have been partaken of to be appreciated, the table groined beneath the weight of edibles, which consisted of all the delicacies of the season, and 'twas finally agreed—

"We can live without poetry, music and art,
We can live without boys and live without heart.
We can live without friends and live without books,
But there isn't a girl can live without cooks."

The moments passed so rapidly at 8 o'clock we buried the heart of the club and departed for Gretna Green. The party consisted of Misses Mary Wilson, Manchester; Manda O'Hara, Fannie London, Minnie White, Florence Van Dyke, Belle London, Jennie McCone, Dot Rilea, Emma Blair, Jennie and Sallie Devore, Georgetown; Mary and Ella Hood, Clara Rains, Maude Wilson, Lucy Madigan and Maggie and Sophia Riedle, Aberdeen.

IN the Circuit Court, Saturday morning, 15th inst., the indictment against William Yates, colored, for maliciously cutting and wounding Charles Dempsy, also colored, was quashed on motion of Commonwealth's attorney Curran. The matter was referred to the next grand jury and Yates' bail-bond fixed at one hundred dollars. A flaw in the indictment necessitated the course taken.

First came Judge Hargis, who took his seat on the mourner's bench alongside of a colored brother; by the way our neighbor, the BULLETIN, has probably not yet seen this item.—Blaine.

Yes, we saw it and we will take this opportunity to remark

You'd have gotten an item worth two of that, In the shape of "a nig" in the wood," Bob Blaine.

Death of Hamilton Gray, Jr.

Mr. Hamilton Gray, jr., died at his residence in this city, this morning, of a Peritoneal affection in the thirty-eighth year of his age. He was for many years one of the prominent business men of Maysville, and dealt fairly and honorably with his fellow-man. We feel safe in saying he never intentionally wronged a human being, and we do not believe there is any one in the world to whom he ever gave just cause for enmity. A wide circle of attached friends here and elsewhere will receive the intelligence of his death with the sincerest regret.

The funeral will take place at four o'clock, this (Sunday) afternoon, from the Episcopal Church, after services by Rev. W. D. Powers, the pastor.

COUNTY POINTS.

GERMANTOWN.

Shall the children be educated? This is a question of momentous importance in the community. Shall our college be sustained? Will individuals living in Germantown and in the vicinity say no? You are doing it. You think it has not been successful in the past, and can not be in the future, and you show your indifference in your conversation and action. What do you say? "We are ebbing so low that we are willing to accept anything now." When a terrific cyclone comes along and throws down your dwelling, what do you say? Let us not be indifferent, but let us up and build it again. The same with your church and other things, and now why not the college—cannot every individual living in this place and adjacent to it, put his shoulder to the wheel and say, I will do what I can. It requires first the realization of the importance of educating the rising generation; second that Germantown is just as good a place as any other to accomplish this work; third that we are able to support a first-class college here, and fourth that we are willing and will have it. It will cost us something, but a school that will do credit to the town, we intend to have, and now when our new professor comes we don't intend to sit down and say let us see him work up the school, but we will help him make it a blessing to our people.

The reason we had so many failures here in the past is we have not had that co-operation that is necessary to make a success. Instead of it we have had a disposition to find fault with the teacher. When he first comes he will be told you will have a hard time here sir, I don't see how you can succeed in this school. And then as sure as he enters upon his work, one dislikes this and another that—and these little things will be whispered all over the community, to the detriment of the school. It is true in the past we have had some cause to find fault with the teachers but not alone, must they be censured. There has been a dereliction in duty elsewhere.

The time has now come when those interested in the Germantown school must not only think, but act. The man written to will probably soon arrive. Let us take him by the hand and say we will help.

Do all christians, so-called, or so professing without regard to his name or order, keep the Sabbath Day? Is it contrary to the teaching of God, and on the Sabbath to go into your store and at the earnest solicitation of a customer sell him a piece of tobacco or a box of sardines? Is it right, even if the laws of the country do justify it; to hand out letters and papers all day, and then have an excuse my custom in trade demands that I should be accommodating. Where does the necessity come in? Is it in keeping with the demands of this sanctified day, to make a big dinner—barden your table with the greatest variety and prepare all this on this day? Is it right even if you do keep hotel and desire to please your boarders?

Is it consistent with a religious profession to take your horse out of the stable and drive him just to keep him in practice? Is it pulling him out of the mire? Is it proper for some of our industrious citizens to work all week, and then hunt strays on Sunday, or see if the day is sifting the stock? Do the moral and celestial among us do as God requires when after a hard week's work they have the outfit repaired and take his family and go out and spend the day with a neighbor and keep that neighbor on church.

Is it right for the preachers to be silent when such questions are propounded? Brothers N. and S. and Elder W. speak out. One of your duties is to reprove sin, when you find it. Let man fail to give the signal of alarm. The people say, speak unto us something? but God says reprove sin.

Instead of pain leaf fans we are calling for our overcoats. Strange weather for July.

Work is progressing slowly but surely on the new pike leading from our town to Minerva. This Road will be a great convenience to our citizens as well as those at Minerva. We hope the board when they come to arrange the rates of toll will be true to the principle of live and let live, and not say for a horse and buggy, you shall pay three cents per mile.

Public Honesty in Russia.

The Boston Herald refers to the statement that an enterprising tradesman of St. Petersburg is about to institute a circulating library in connection with the street cars of the city, and thus moralizes: "All this, simple as it is, sounds incredible to American ears. But in a country where drinking cups have to be chained to pumps and drinking fountains, and where waiters gangle their attention according to the amount of their fees, it is, perhaps, well not to expect too much."

Causes for High Prices of Food.

Louisville Post.

A gentleman who has been familiar with the workings of the produce market for years says that the whole cause of the trouble is in the wild craze for speculating. Nothing is free from the touch of the speculator. The backwardness of the season, that caused a scarcity in vegetables, opened the doors for speculators, and they rushed in. Meats and vegetables of all kinds are held in quantity by speculators, and while they are making money the masses must suffer. "Sooner or later," said the gentleman, "something will have to be done in this country to keep the hands of speculators off of the necessities of life."

Housekeeping in the White House.

Globe Democrat.

Mrs. Stover, the daughter of Andrew Jackson, was a most thorough and excellent housewife, and, by the perfect order and management of the establishment, won a reputation for domestic talents that a New England matron might envy.

Mrs. Grant was altogether the best housekeeper the mansion ever had, and the most of her eight years was spent in devising how to patch, turn, and make presentable the well-worn furnishings, since so much of the annual appropriation went to the roof, the water spout, and the plumbing. Mrs. Grant left the house in the most perfect condition, with everything spick and span, scrubbed, cleaned, and polished about it, and gave a written inventory of every article, from the kitchen traps to the rags and crippled furniture of the garret.

Mrs. Hayes left things more to the care of the servants during her four years, and during the illness of Mrs. Garfield, and afterward the death seige of President Garfield the place ran itself.

It was like cleaning the Augean stables to bring the house to a proper condition for President Arthur, and that fastidiously neat gentleman gave some very decided orders when he first inspected the White House from top to bottom with a view to residence. When it was scraped and scoured, cleaned, papered and furnished afresh, President Arthur entered into his domain with some reasonable complacency. He was ushered into his own private room, a poem of carefully blended tints of robin's-egg blue and maroon, touched with dull gold and bronze, and then it was found that there was not a towel in the White House stores. The stock had diminished and then disappeared after President Garfield's illness, and his successor's first official act was to command the purchase of these necessary appliances to civilization before he could dry his hands.

Among the plans proposed to the British Balloon Society is that of a balloon to be kept under control by means of compressed gas. The gas would be stored in a suitable tank under pressure, and the balloon would be reduced in size or enlarged at pleasure by admitting or withdrawing gas—which might be effected by simply turning a crank. The balloon would of course fall when reduced in size and rise as it became expanded, so that ballast and waste of gas would be rendered unnecessary. Improvement in another direction is still sought by aeronauts who are striving to travel considerable distances in predetermined courses. Little success has attended these efforts.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain it effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

From Rev. P. N. GRANGER.

Presiding Elder of the St. Albans District. ST. ALBANS, VT., Jan., 20, 1880.
DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure' has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ringbone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found. Respectfully yours, P. N. GRANGER.

Perseverance Will Tell.

STROUGHTON, MASS., March 16, 1880.
B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In justice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure,' one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me it will be very great.

Respectfully yours, CHAS. E. PARKER.
KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach a very deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargement, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for Illustrated Circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. ALL DRUGGISTS have it or can get it for you or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors. DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vermont. j27d.

BATCHELDER'S Ventilated Egg Case.

Patented February 15, 1881.

Indispensable to Merchants Shippers And Producers.

The outside frame of this carrier contains five trays, held in place by fasteners at end of case, as seen in cut. These Trays are constructed in reversible halves. The above cut shows one whole tray filled ready to be placed in case, each egg resting in its cardboard socket in such a manner as to be readily counted, candied, or transferred from tray to tray, or case to case without rehandling.

For cold storage this case will store 60 dozen with racks made to receive the half trays, hence this is the cheapest storage case manufactured, saving largely in space.

The manner of holding the eggs on end prevents oscillation, adding, or breakage, and adds greatly to their freshness when carried long in storage. Size of 30 dozen No. 1 cases 25x12x14, weighs 20 pounds.

PRICES IN CHICAGO.

Shipper's No. 1, 30 doz. Case with Fillers complete.....65 Cents.
